Boydell House, 2003

Historic Overview:

This double house, built to resemble a large single-family residence, was constructed in a Beaux Arts Classical style of brick and limestone in 1895. The house was the home of William C. Boydell, a Detroit industrialist in the paint manufacturing industry. Boydell was the vice president and treasurer of the Boydell Brothers White Lead and Color Company. The company became a major national producer of prepared paints, oils, and varnishes.<sup>1</sup>
